

Employment Opportunity: Indigenous Student Producer

Trent Radio invites applications from Trent University Students who are TWSP Eligible to fill the position of Indigenous Student Producer.

Trent Radio is a Community Broadcast Facility transmitting at 92.7 FM in Peterborough, ON. Established and operated by the students of Trent University, Trent Radio is designed with the production of exceptional radio in mind. Its aims and objects include producer-oriented programming and broad community participation for the production of creative local radio.

Working independently, the Indigenous Student Producer will be responsible for producing weekly radio broadcast content to highlight, feature and promote the people and activities within Chanie Wenjack School of Indigenous Studies. The successful candidate will be responsible for developing, hosting, producing and promoting a weekly radio show focusing on the Indigenous communities within Trent University's student body.

The position will provide exceptional experience in meeting deadlines, creative presentation, communication and outreach and well as audio editing and production for radio broadcast. The position will be a blend of remote/independent work and in-house radio production.

Please send resume & cover letter to: info@trentradio.ca

ATTN: TWSP 2022 Hiring Committee

Deadline: Friday September 23rd @ High Noon

Start Date: Monday September 26th, 6hrs/week

Compensation: $16.92/hour

We appreciate all applications, but only those successful in securing an interview will be contacted.